The organizational chart illustrates the hierarchy of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) as of January 1976. At the top is the Director of Central Intelligence (DCI). Reporting directly to the DCI are the Deputy Director for Intelligence, the Assistant DDI, and the Board and Office of National Estimates. The Assistant DDI oversees several key areas: Admin, Exec. and Planning Staffs; COMIREX; Research Staff; and the Operations Center. The Board and Office of National Estimates also has a dashed-line connection to the Assistant DDI. Below the Assistant DDI, there are eight offices: OSI, FMSAC, Office of Strategic Research, Office of Current Intelligence, Office of Basic & Geographic Intelligence, Director of Intelligence Support, Office of Economic Research, and National Photographic Interpretation Center. The Director of Intelligence Support oversees three services: Central Reference Service, Domestic Contact Service, and Collection Guidance Staff. A large black redaction box covers the name of the individual serving in the position between Domestic Contact Service and Collection Guidance Staff. To the right of this redacted box is the label "STATSPEC".
